Churchill Says Hun Peace Terms Unchanged

Commons Told Charter Objectives Valid, But Paper Is Not Law

BACKS LONDON POLES

Prime Minister Doubts Demands On Germans Will Delay Peace

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Prime Minister Churchill told commons today that the Allies will fight on until Germany surrenders unconditionally, even if such a policy stiffens Nazi resistance and prolongs the war.

Churchill reaffirmed the Allies' insistence on unconditional surrender in answer to persistent questions from labor members at the reopening of parliament after the Christmas recess.

But by coincidence his reply came less than 24 hours after Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., charged in the U. S. senate that unconditional surrender was a "brutal, asinine slogan" which was costing thousands of American lives, splitting Allied unity and threatening a third world war.

Churchill also: 1.—Indorsed President Roosevelt's views that the objectives of the Atlantic charter were as valid as they were in 1941 though all were not likely to be attained immediately and the charter "is not law."

Polish Recognition

2.—Assured the house that Britain would continue to recognize the Polish exile government in London as the legal government of Poland despite Russia's recognition of the rival provisional regime at Lublin.

3.—Revealed British casualties in Greece from Dec. 3 to Jan. 6 totaled 2,101, including 237 dead, but put off all questions on Greece until after he has made his statement and debate begins on the Greek situation Thursday.

Churchill's remarks on the Atlantic Charter clearly showed that he had joined common cause with President Roosevelt in public expressions on the matter as an important step in avoiding Anglo-American bickering and in presenting a more united front at the coming meeting of the Allied "Big Three."

Policy Criticized

He also sought to allay criticism of British policy in Greece with a brief comment that he had "every reason to believe that the present government is extremely democratic . . . composed entirely of Republicans."

During the discussion, an orderly crowd of factory workers visited the central lobby to interview members regarding the Greek policy, but were told it would be wiser to await the government's statement Thursday.

SOME CAME HOME—AND SOME PLOD ON

IN BELGIUM'S SNOW PACKED HILLS THESE YANKS DREAM OF A FURLOUGH

AND THESE HAVE EARNED THEIR FURLOUGH THE HARD WAY AND ARE HOME

ONLY A FEW SHORT WEEKS AGO many of the 1300 Yank heroes who are scattering over the nation on their 30 days furlough were battling on many fronts with the U. S. 1st, 3rd, 7th and 9th Armies winning their assorted decorations and the all-too-short furlough fun that began when they checked in and out of Camp Shanks, Orangeburg, N. Y. Even as these veterans of many a tough battle were happily shouting (as shown below), the pals they left behind them were ploughing through the snow storms of the Belgian bulge (see picture above) dreaming of the day when they will see American shores again. #### NAM OPPOSED TO WORK OR FIGHT

Voluntary Manpower Program Will Meet National Need, Manufacturers Say

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The National Association of Manufacturers declared today that the work-or-fight principle can be carried out effectively through a voluntary manpower program instead of the drastic proposals to put industry and labor "in a strait-jacket by compulsory legislation."

In a statement outlining its own solution to the problem, the NAM called for cooperative industry-labor efforts in each community and congressional passage of legislation to give legal authority to the War Manpower Commission's present controls on workers.

The organization reiterated its strong opposition to national service as the house military affairs committee called on CIO President Philip Murray to testify on the pending bill to draft all men 18-45 who refuse to work in essential jobs. Both the CIO and AFL are opposed to compulsory measures.

ONE MAN ARMY OF BUNA KILLED BY JAP MORTAR

WITH 32ND DIVISION, LEYTE, Jan. 16.—Capt. Herman Botcher, 35, the one man army of Buna, died of wounds early December 31 as his small reconnaissance force battled off 300 Japanese far behind enemy lines in the drive south toward Ormoc, headquarters revealed today.

The German-born Botcher, who enlisted as a private soon after Pearl Harbor and became a legendary hero in the Southwest Pacific, was struck in the arm and knee by enemy mortar fire and died a few hours later.

As a sergeant at Buna during the New Guinea campaign two years ago, Botcher won a battle-field commission and the Distinguished Service Cross.

He often had said "If they only would give me actual command of an outfit, I would get something done."

EIGHT HURT IN FALLS ON ICE

Highways Become Slippery When Freeze Follows Rain And Snow

Eight more local residents had been reported injured in falls Tuesday as winter tightened its icy grip on Circleville and Pickaway county.

Freezing temperatures following Monday's alternating rain and snow made highways and streets large expanses of slippery ice. All roads in the area were bad and sidewalk travel was hazardous.

Reported treated at Berger hospital following falls were: Phyllis Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Davis, Route 2, Circleville, cut on hand; Patricia Smith, 22 months, 147 East Mill street, concussion; Marvin Robinson, 375 Weldon avenue, fall while skating; head injuries; Norma Reid, 677 East Mound street, hand injury; Mrs. W. F. Rivers, Route 3, Mt. Sterling, injured arm; Mrs. Lawrence Styers, 614 Clinton street, arm injury; Mrs. Ella Reynolds, West Corwin street, fractured ankle, suffered in fall on ice at her home.

RATION CARDS FOR CIGARETS

"Punch A Pack" Cards To Be Distributed By 1,000,000 Retailers

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Cigarette ration cards — good for a pack a punch — were ready for distribution to the nation's 1,000,000 retailers today under an industry-sponsored program through which the National Association of Tobacco Dealers hopes to put an end to the daily nationwide scramble for smokes.

The plan, approved yesterday by distributors attending a wartime conference here, would not supplement existing supplies, but would assure a more equitable distribution through local outlets, according to Joseph Kolodny, executive secretary of the association.

Kolodny admitted the system would be unfeasible for chain stores and the so-called transient outlets, such as hotel and railroad stands, which account for 15 percent of the supply, but predicted that it would prevent raids by hoarders who shop every possible outlet.

Get Single Card

Within the next two weeks, he said, numbered cards would be distributed to consumers, who will be requested to sign a declaration that they hold only one card. The cards will be distributed by local retailers, presumably only to their regular customers and will be honored only by the issuing dealer. The cards will be punched each time the holder purchases a pack of cigarettes and when all the punches have been used up, a new one will be issued.

The card will not be worth any specified number of cigarettes — or for that matter, any at all — Kolodny emphasized. However, he said, the program is expected to enable dealers to apportion their current supplies fairly and eventually limit smokers to a single source of supply.

OPA Sanction

The Office of Price Administration has expressed no disapproval to the proposal, he said, pointing out that the OPA itself has avoided rationing only because of the difficulty of determining how many people are cigarette smokers. He predicted that most retailers would welcome rationing and cooperate to the fullest.

"Why shouldn't they?" he added. "Most tobaccoists are eager to (Continued on Page Two)

LAUSCHE PLANS FACING INITIAL ASSEMBLY TEST

Governor's Message Wins Loud Praise, Including Republican Opinion

STRICT ECONOMY URGED

Transfer Of Part Of Big Surplus Recommended For Peace Emergencies

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16.—Gov. Frank J. Lausche's recommended legislative program faced its first hurdle today as the senate finance committee considered the bill which would make recently granted wage increases for state employees retroactive to last July.

Lausche, in his biennial message to the legislature, strongly opposed the wage bill. He also urged strict government economy, opposed revision of the tax structure, and asked for the renewal of the expiring cigarette, utilities excise and one cent liquid fuel taxes.

The governor said the state will need all available funds for possible postwar emergencies. To this end, he said, at least $46,000,000 of the state's $92,000,000 surplus should be retained in the state treasury.

Building Program

But he recommended a $28,000,000 welfare building program and $18,000,000 to be used by a proposed unified conservation department for the purchase of waste lands, construction of dams, soil conservation, erosion control and establishment of state parks.

Lausche's message was directed to all groups. It covered taxes, conservation, agriculture, welfare, labor, industry, local governments, education, home rule, highways, slum clearance, liquor, old age pensions and race relations.

Republican assembly leaders predicted that the governor would be overruled on his recommendation against the retroactive pay measure. But they generally agreed that it was a sound speech which tied in well with their ideas. Senate majority leader Frank E. Whittemore said it was his opinion that the wage bill will pass the Republican-dominated assembly despite Lausche's opposition. He said that "if it is passed there will be no politics involved."

Aid For Schools

Lausche also recommended increased appropriations for the school foundation program and local governments. He said, however, that any increases must be "reasonable and consistent with the financial needs of other governmental agencies."

He served notice on state department heads of impending budget cuts. (Continued on Page Two)

FOURTEEN BURN TO DEATH IN CHICAGO FIRE

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Fourteen persons were burned to death early today and many others were reported injured when fire swept through the six-story General Clark hotel on the northern edge of the Loop.

Firemen removed 12 bodies from the ruins of the 70-room building shortly after the flames had been brought under control. One other person, an unidentified woman, died in a hospital of injuries received when she leaped from a window to escape the flames, and one man died of burns, police said.

The blaze was discovered shortly after midnight and was brought under control about two hours later. Thousands of persons attracted by the screaming fire sirens watched as guests trapped in the upper stories of the structure leaped into nets.

Others escaped through the lobby or down fire escapes as the flames swept upward through the top four stories.

The management said about 50 permanent guests and a number of transients were registered in the hotel.

The origin of the fire was not determined.

Connally Says Senate Will Stamp Approval On Peace Organization

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Chairman Tom Connally, D. Tex., of the senate foreign relations committee, said today he was confident that the senate, despite isolationist opposition, would "overwhelmingly" approve American participation in a world peace organization.

Talk of possible senate rejection of a peace treaty involving a new League of Nations was revived as a result of an intense foreign policy debate in which Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., ardent pre-war isolationist bitterly denounced the Dumbarton Oaks world security plan.

Sen. Claude Pepper, D. Fla., responding to Wheeler, blamed senate rejection of the League of Nations for the present war and expressed a fear that "history may be repeated" after this war ends.

To Ratify Treaty

Connally, however, recalled that the senate already had approved by a vote of 85 to 5, a resolution favoring U. S. participation in an international peace organization and said he felt "confident" that the senate would ratify a treaty in which it is presented.

In connection with Wheeler's bitter denunciation of the Dumbarton Oaks agreement, which is expected to provide the basis for such a treaty Connally told reporters:

"Of course there will be some bitter and determined opposition, but the sentiment of the country is overwhelmingly in favor of a world peace organization and the senate will reflect that attitude."

PRODUCE GOALS INCREASED FOR ALL FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Food Administrator Marvin Jones today announced final agricultural production goals for 1945 and appealed to American farmers to exert every effort to make it another year of all-out production.

The goals called for the seeding of 363,635,000 acres during 1945, a three percent increase over last year, and meat production slightly greater than in 1944.

"The production goals will serve as a guide for farmers for another year in which food production will be just as important to the war as it was in 1944," Jones said. "We are again asking for all-out production."

The WFA chief expressed confidence—barring adverse weather—that 1945 will be another year "of splendid farm achievement." He warned, however, that farmers face many wartime difficulties including shortages of labor, machinery and supplies.

Egg production goals were six percent higher than those proposed in November, but still were notably below 1944. Requested acreage of vegetables for canning also showed a marked increase because, the WFA said, increased military requirements "will necessitate output at maximum capacity of processing plants."

Jones called for a 50 percent increase in sugar beet and flax crops, and slightly higher production of corn, wheat, tobacco, potatoes, beef and pork.

Russian Armies Driving Across Southern Poland On 40 Mile Line

CHINA COAST POUNDED

American Forces On Luzon Still Meet Only Slight Jap Resistance

By United Press
American troops entered the road center of Houffalize in the Ardennes salient without opposition today and converged in three columns on St. Vith at the north-eastern shoulder of the bulge, where the Germans were making a strong stand.

The Russians drove across Southern Poland on a 40-mile line to within 45 miles of the German border, and in East Prussia the German high command admitted the Soviet capture of Pillkallen (Schlossberg) in another powerful westward offensive.

In the Pacific, Tokyo reported that carrier planes of the Third United States fleet, which turned north after wrecking 69 ships off French Indo-China, had attacked targets along the China coast from Hong Kong to Swatow for the second day. American forces on Luzon advanced across the Manila plain almost one-third of the way to the capital, still without serious Japanese opposition.

Gain At Ardennes

American progress on the Ardennes sector of the western front was offset in part by German advances in Alsace, where a strong enemy attack on United States Seventh Army forces at Hatten, on the northern edge of the Haguenau forest, drove the Americans from most of the town. Strong German reinforcements were reported moving down from the Siegfried line to join the battle.

The German drive came at a time when the Americans appeared to be getting the situation in hand in that sector. Front dispatches said the Germans seemed to be trying to make up for their Ardennes setback by gaining a local victory in Alsace, perhaps splitting the Seventh Army front and capturing Strasbourg.

In the Ardennes the Germans were reported massing for a determined stand along the 18-mile wooded mountain ridge between St. Vith and Houffalize to protect their continuing retreat toward the Siegfried line.

Huns Pull Out

The Germans pulled out of Houffalize suddenly last night, presumably to take up position along the ridge, toward which the entire northeastern wing of the First Army was wheeling. American spearheads were reported less than (Continued on Page Two)

BRITISH POLICY ON WAR GUILTY MAY BE PROBED

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Parliament soon may investigate the British government's refusal to join other United Nations in sanctioning war guilt trials for Adolf Hitler and other international criminals.

The possibility of open debate of the question in parliament arose coincidentally with the appointment of Lord Finlay, a 70-year-old judge, as British representative on the United War Crimes Commission. He succeeds Sir Cecil Hurst, who resigned because of poor health.

A spokesman for the foreign office admitted legal trials would be a satisfactory answer to the problem of what to do with Hitler and his kind, but said "unfortunately there is no international code covering crimes against humanity."

The spokesman also said it was not certain the accused war criminals would fall into the hands of nations represented on the commission. Russia is not represented, but has more or less established a precedent for handling war criminals captured by her armies, he said.

The foreign office stand appeared to strengthen an alternative proposal that exile would be the best way to deal with the Axis leaders.

Failure To Halt Yanks In Philippines Stirs Mounting Criticism

By United Press

Tokyo broadcasts indicated today that criticism of the Koiso government was increasing in high Japanese circles despite its adoption of a five-point "win-the-war" program.

The Imperial Rule Assistance Political Society, parliamentary wing of Japan's mass totalitarian party and in care of opposition to the government, scheduled further meetings to discuss the situation, Tokyo broadcasts said.

The broadcasts indicated a move may be underfoot to unseat Premier Gen. Kuniaka Koiso because of his government's failure to halt the American conquest of the Philippines and other Japanese war reverses.

Hinting that the going may not be as smooth as usual in the diet when it reconvenes Jan. 21, Tokyo said that two representatives of the political society would "interpellate" upon the government's concrete administrative policies . . . including general governmental administration and governmental renovations.

"In addition," Tokyo said, "these two men will indicate those (Continued on Page Two)

LIQUOR BLACK MART KING HAS MILLION PROFIT

ATLANTA, Jan. 16.—Federal agents today held Thomas M. Gorman, 43, on a charge of selling liquor on the black market during the whiskey drought of 1943 and reaping more than $1,000,000 profits.

Gorman was arrested in nearby Cobb county. The government described him as the "biggest liquor black market operator in the country" and sought to remove him to New York where a 43-count criminal information was filed against him last July.

A former sales manager for Brown-Vintner Co., wholesale liquor house which was not involved in the charges, Gorman was accused of selling liquor over ceiling prices in 43 specific instances. The government charged that he sold illegally to hotels, night clubs and package stores of Cairo, Ill., Kansas City, Mo., Columbia, S. C. and other cities.

determination to fight on to unconditional surrender in replying to a question from Laborite John R. Davies whether the policy might be reconsidered in view of "recent complications in international affairs."

"No sir," Churchill said.
When Davis asked whether Churchill didn't think the unconditional surrender policy was stiffening German resistance and prolonging the war, Churchill said:

Draws Cheers
"We don't take that view at all. I think the house would be overwhelmingly against our attempting to make peace by negotiation." Loud cheers greeted the reply.
"At any rate," Churchill went on, "our Allies would be overwhelmingly opposed to such a course. It is quite impossible to discuss these things in a question-time. An opportunity may occur in debate to discuss them."

"I am not of the opinion that the demand for unconditional surrender is prolonging the war. At any rate, the war will be prolonged until unconditional surrender has been obtained."

"Do you not appreciate that the slogan, 'unconditional surrender,' has great political value for Hitler and his gang?" asked Laborite Ben Riley.
"I don't think that is so," Churchill replied.

A number of members rose with questions regarding Greece, but Churchill asked them to await his statement and the start of debate on the Greek situation Thursday.

Greek Situation Delayed
Laborite Emanuel Shinwell pressed Churchill for a statement whether Britain was supporting Greek Premier Gen. Nicholas Plastiras' announcement the ELAS will be cleared from Greece, but was told to await the debate.

When Thomas E. N. Driberg, independent, continued to needle him for an immediate statement, Churchill snapped:

"I won't be drawn into this." However, he praised British Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie's remark in Athens regarding minorities as "admirably" handled.

Davis asked whether Churchill would include in his forthcoming statement reference to the Atlantic Charter "in view of the fact that a recent statement by President Roosevelt cast doubt on the genuineness."

Far from casting doubt on the genuineness of the charter, Churchill said, President Roosevelt declared Dec. 22 that its objectives were as valid as they were in 1941 though he indicated that all its objectives were not likely to be attained immediately.

"I am in agreement with these statements," Churchill said.

He said he had told the Empire and India that the Charter's objects and principles already were being achieved by the process of extending self-government.

Asked if he would make a statement soon on what parts of the Charter were valid immediately, Churchill said:

"I really do not think there is any need to go into that. It has been very well described by the President as a standard of aims—an indication of the direction in which we are proceeding. It is not law."

MRS. W. F. HEINE SPEAKS BEFORE KIWANIS CLUB

"Impaired Hearing" was the subject of Mrs. W. F. Heine, speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting Monday evening in Hanley's restaurant.

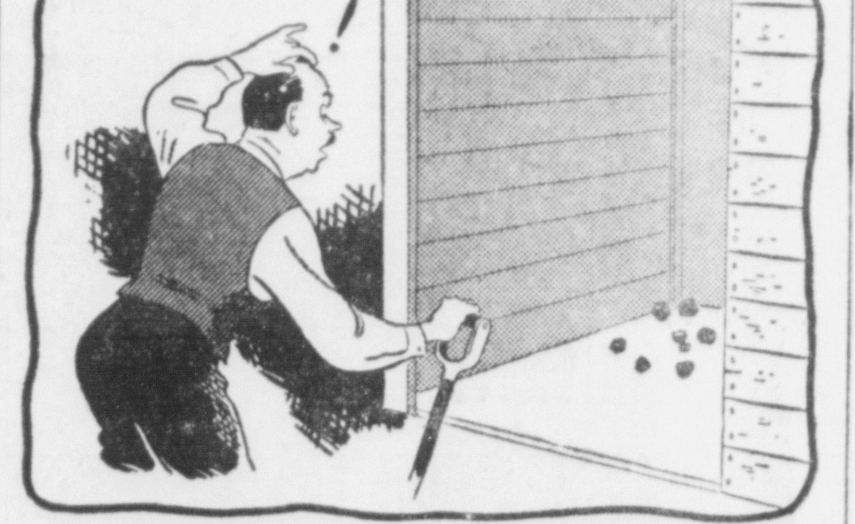

She pointed out the difference between deaf people, those who have never heard sound, and persons with impaired hearing, people who have heard sound but have lost their hearing. Mrs. Heine stated that lip reading and a hearing aid would help persons who have lost their hearing. To be effective a hearing aid must be fitted to the individual like glasses, because each case of impaired hearing is different, she declared.

Mrs. Heine said that impaired hearing would be a definite post-war problem. Many of the returning servicemen will have only partial hearing. Estimates run as high as 75 percent. She said that three hospitals are now operated for servicemen who have been partially deafened. They are taught lip reading and fitted with a hearing aid.

Besides war, impaired hearing also is caused by various kinds of sickness. The common cold is responsible for many cases.

Short on Fuel?

Keep warm on less fuel with JOHN'S-MANVILLE ROCK WOOL INSULATION

This winter, and every winter, your house can be warmer and more comfortable on less fuel if it is insulated with Johns-Manville Rock Wool Batts. This is particularly important now that there is a critical fuel shortage. J-M Rock Wool will save you up to 30% in heating costs! Your house will be more comfortable in summer, too. You'll sleep cool on those hot summer nights.

You pay for insulation in wasted heat when you don't have it. Why not enjoy its comfort and fuel savings—it soon pays for itself! J-M Rock Wool is fireproof, rotproof, permanent as stone. We have big thick J-M Superfelt Batts in stock. Call us today.

Johns-Manville BUILDING MATERIALS

COLD FACTS ABOUT A HOT SUBJECT

YOUR GAS SUPPLY

Q. With the new Texas line delivering 200 million cubic feet of gas a day to this area, why has there been a gas shortage this winter?

A. War industries and war living conditions have greatly increased demands for gas over prewar years. Less than 20 percent of the known natural gas supply of the Appalachian area remains. Since the fields are old, they no longer give up their gas in quantities sufficiently large to meet peak cold-day demands. We have had more cold weather in the early months of this winter than any time in recent years. The huge drain of gas from the wells in early winter has lowered further their ability to produce large amounts quickly. The new Texas supply does little more than offset the depletion during the last year of the gas available per day in the area. Ohio Fuel Gas Company's share from the new Texas line is only about 20 percent.

Q. Why were gas pressures low in some neighborhoods or communities on January 2nd, while others had adequate service?

A. In an attempt to continue gas service to war industries as long as possible, the pressures within our entire system of lines fell alarmingly on that cold day. With lower pressures in our transmission lines, it is more difficult to force sufficient gas into some communities to maintain adequate service pressures.

Q. What previous steps had The Gas Company taken to prevent such shortages?

A. We had developed underground storage areas into which out-of-state gas is stored in summer months to be available near the markets for increased winter demands. This was generally satisfactory until last winter when the rapid decline of the West Virginia fields was first felt seriously. In 1941 one or more companies in the area had attempted to build a line to Texas but armaments were demanding all available steel.

Q. What is the War Production Board's part in this situation?

A. The War Production Board has been most helpful and fair in their assistance of apportioning gas to meet the needs of war industries as well as civilian uses. Often they have cut through legal red tape in time of emergencies to permit taking of gas from one company to another when the need was critical.

Q. Will there be more gas emergencies this winter?

A. It is most likely that we will experience several between now and next April, the frequency and severity of which will depend upon the weather, the war and our customers' ability to conserve gas in their everyday uses.

Q. What steps are being taken to provide an adequate supply of gas for the future?

A. Another intensive drilling program will be engaged in throughout the area in 1945. If additional compressor facilities can be made available and installed in the existing two long lines which supply gas to the Appalachian area from Texas, the capacity of these lines can be increased between 40 and 50 million cubic feet of gas daily.

In these times when there is a serious shortage of coal, oil and gas, every family, business and industry must recognize the importance of avoiding all possible waste of fuel. Plan your requirements ahead so that you will be able to meet your minimum heating requirements with the fuel on which you regularly depend to do the job. If you "borrow" on another fuel, it adds to the difficulties of serving the customers who regularly depend on the other fuel.

FIRST THING

THERE have not been any really serious strikes in this country lately but there have been threats of them, which are almost as bad as the real thing.

It has to be borne in mind continually, by Americans of every group and economic level, that this is, of all times, the most dangerous time to indulge in such liberties. As St. Paul pointed out long ago, there may be procedures which are technically allowable, but practically not expedient.

With two great, aggressive wars in progress, threatening the life of this nation, it is a time for every citizen to put his national loyalty ahead of all minor loyalties.

BIG DAM

PRONOUNCE it if you can. The Dniepropetrovsk dam is being rebuilt. This dam, one of the world's greatest and a pride of the Soviets, was blown up by them early in the war to hold back the Germans. Further damage was done by the Nazis later. Now it is being restored.

The influence of the T.V.A. and the Grand Coulee is apparent in this project to make the Dnieper river a rich source of cheap power. It will add not only to Russia's wealth, but to the world's.

THE OPEN DOOR

THERE will be plenty of things to argue about after the war, and one of them seems to be already getting a mild start. This is the question of immigration. It is a far cry back to the time when foreign settlers were pouring in at the rate of a million a year, tired of Old World poverty and stagnation and eager for New World prosperity. That great migration was checked by the last war and later quota restrictions and depressions, until latterly the new arrivals are said to have averaged only about 40,000 a year.

European population will be considerably lowered by the end of the present war, and it might be expected that the room thus created would tend to lessen the trend toward emigration. But Uncle Sam's domain will probably be as glamorous as ever. And many students of this subject not only expect an immigration boom, but are disposed to welcome it, as contributing to a new expansion era for this country. Perhaps there will be two groups of minds about that, with the old slogan of "America for Americans" rising again. Exactly what is an American?

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—Excerpts from a recent talk of mine, "the revolution in values."

Ours is a capitalistic system which depends for its strength and power upon soundness—not only in finance, taxation, prices, and such economic matters, but also political soundness built upon the confidence of its people. . .

In red ink, we must write on our books the burden of the greatest debt of history, eventually to be 300 billions of dollars, we must service and pay this debt, carry it as our war burden, for we financed this war, not only our part of it, but that of everyone else, including Russia to some extent. But Russia will have no such burden. She has for herself destroyed our concept of financial values. . .

At the heart core of this war is the revolution in values which started long before the war and will continue long after. I have spoken only of the corruption of financial values, or one phase of them which destroyed the morality of money.

This war indeed is only a superficial phase of the revolution in all values, the decline of morality in politics, international diplomacy, education, and, indeed, the individual lives of men.

Consider politics. The promised word no longer has popular value. You seldom hear the word "honor" any more. It is considered Victorian to be honorable.

The people have come to accept the doctrine of immediacy, of doing what sounds best at a given moment. They scorn traditional values as restraints and inhibitions. They themselves are no more tied to soundness than the money of the world.

Take international diplomacy. Repudiations of treaties before ink is dry represents the same departure from soundness in values, as that of political leader from the promised word, and that of money from the shadow of substance. The doctrine of immediacy is what guides nations. Their own desires of the moment rule their conduct and make the world.

In education there has been the same corruption of realistic values which we have noted in money, politics, and international relations—the doctrine that children should be raised also according to their own desires. Education is to be a sight-seeing affair.

There is no phase of existence which has not been touched by the revolution in values, the erection of ideals of immediacy.

In the end, all the world must come back to values. But is it to come back to the realization of soundness only after thoroughly exploring and suffering the collapse of the foolishness of immediate desire as a guide to life?

Will we have to go completely through the revolution to the bottom and let each man know the falsity of these indulgent fictions before all can grasp the solid fact and truth? Or will the resurgence of reason founded upon the experience of the war catch definite hold now and lead our people on to realism and common sense?

I do not know. My judgement is that revolutions generally run the course of extremity before they settle down into sense. First, there must arise a powerful leadership for good before there can be good.

Above all, no matter what the immediate future course, there must be no compromise of ideals. Those who know the true values of life also know that one day these will be restored to popular ac-

"Heart Attacks"—Dreaded Words

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
"HEART attacks," "angina pectoris"—these terms bring a dread connotation to the average person. One's morning paper sel-

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

dom lacks the account of a person in the full surge of activity who suddenly passed away with a heart attack. Of course, "heart attack" is used quite indiscriminately nowadays: anyone who passes away suddenly has had a "heart attack." It may not be his heart at all. But the fear remains.

Anginal Attacks
This picture so strongly implanted in the public mind takes no account of the thousands of men and women who have anginal attacks and have had them for years and who go about their business pretty generally enjoying themselves, with no fear of any impending calamity. It all depends upon the point of view.

I know plenty of them who should by all the rules have been dead long ago. But there they go bustling about busily getting 6% when lots of healthier people are only getting 4.

Methods of Treatment
For the man or woman who has just had the first anginal attack the outlook looks a good deal blacker than need be. I find in a recent treatise that there are 68 methods of treatment of angina that have been used at a certain American hospital and nearly 30 per cent of all the patients responded strikingly to one or more of these forms of treatment. So much so that they have been going about their business for years without any discomfort or disability. Nearly 40 per cent did moderately well, making seventy per cent of all such patients who are living out a pretty full schedule of activity and in enjoyment of their faculties and happiness of life.

The fellow who after his first attack of angina just decides to lie down and wait for death is really dying unnecessarily before his time.

It is possible to judge whether a patient with angina is responding to treatment by giving him an exercise test. There are several types of these. The general principle is to measure the amount of work which will induce an attack of angina. The test must be conducted under standard conditions. For instance, the temperature of the room must be the same, and the test must be given at least an hour after meal time. The exercise itself is not strenuous, consisting, in most forms, of walking up and down a few steps.

The post-war world should include, if it be perfect, instantly-heated self-melting sidewalks.

Those who show an increase in exercise tolerance under treatment of 100 per cent or more usually have complete or almost complete freedom from attacks in daily life. An increase of exercise tolerance of 30 to 75 per cent is usually associated with some improvement in number and intensity of the attacks.

Angina Cured
So people do get over angina, serious disease though it is. I would be the last to say that a patient afflicted with angina should plan a hard and strenuous program of life. But an attack does not mean that he is doomed to a sick room for the rest of his days. After all, the first doctor who ever described angina, William Heberden, had as his first patient an old man, part of whose cure was saying so much wood a day. That is really graduated exercise, and he lived a long time.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. When one of my two children, 3 and 6, receives a gift we must match it as soon as possible for the other child. Otherwise, the second child is very unhappy. What should we do?

A. This is a very expensive and pernicious practice. There is no better way to make these children very selfish. Explain to them that from now on this practice will end, that each will have to wait until his own birthday, and that when one receives a gift the other can hope for one at some later time. When you buy gifts for both at the same time don't select identical gifts. Let the one have a cart, for example, and the other a wagon. Then they will soon discover it to their advantage to exchange playthings occasionally and to cooperate at play.

SYNOPSIS

How would you like to have been christened Agamemnon Telemachus Plum and—though now a learned doctor and professor, age 34—to be called "AGGIE"? Even the Greeks might have no classic word for your answer. And to be under the personal social supervision of Aunt Sarah, jolly, sophisticated, and gossipy? Well, Aggie and Auntie are now in the ancient and expensive family limousine with Windle, the chauffeur, and Chille, the maid, motoring north towards the mountains from the summer heat of New York City. En route to Indian Stones, Aunt Sarah promotes Beth Calder as a matrimonial prospect for Aggie, mentioning a family scandal which prompts her nephew to exclaim, "And you want me to marry into this shambles!" He warns her (even in Latin) against thrusting prospective wives on him.

CHAPTER THREE

The antique automobile bumbled along through the countryside. Afternoon was replaced by early evening. In a town far to the north, they stopped for dinner. Nothing more was said about the match-making proclivities of Sarah Plum. Her nephew regaled her with a tale of certain events and customs which he had observed among the fire-worshipping natives of a place called, as nearly as she could catch it, Galumbalooia.

The turn-off for Indian Stones was marked by a sign made of birch logs—a sign that had been there for twenty-two years—or a replica of the old sign. Birch rots pretty fast, Aggie thought, so it was probably a replacement. Nevertheless, it filled him with nostalgia, which surprised him, because his summers at the resort had been lonely. Sarah had done her best to compensate for his mother, who had died at the time of his birth, and his father, who had survived her by seven years. But nobody can make up for such destitution.

Route 665, where Windle swung the car, had been black—and tarry in the summer. Now it was cement. But the Indian Stones road was still unpaved. Hard gravel rained on the fenders. Mudguards, they'd called them in those days. . .

The luminous dial on his wrist pointed to ten o'clock. The car began winding and climbing; the air was fragrant with the scent of pine and a subliminal smell of near-by fresh water. They passed the Waite house and the Calder house—rambling, big, rustic, dimly familiar. They swung into the straight stretch between Upper and Lower Lake, past the first and last holes of the golf course and the clubhouse. Its roccoco roof-jumble rose weirdly against the stars. Dr. Plum remembered the rooms in it, and the cellars under it, where he and some other kids had played pirate and Count of Monte Cristo—cellars of a hotel which had burned down. They'd built the club on the old foundations. And the date on the clubhouse, in scroll woodwork above the fieldstone supporting the porch, was 1885. There had been people—well-to-do people—at Indian Stones for many generations.

The road forked and forked again. Headlights touched calm water and swung away. They were nearing the drive of "Rain-bow Lodge." Every house here was a "lodge." He turned toward his aunt.

"I'm awake," Sarah said. "I've been watching you watch." She spoke with some difficulty.

"Your sore throat's worse!" he said.

The professor leaped out of the car and seized the old man's arms. "John! You haven't changed a particle! Sarah didn't tell me you'd be here! This is great! And—look, Sarah's feeling badly—so you and Chille get her inside, first. I'll take care of the bags, with Windle."

"It's mighty nice to see you, Mr. Aggie," said old John, peering at the professor he knew as a boy.

"Nonsense! It's not a sore throat, anyway. Not exactly. My jaws feel stiff, that's all."

"We'll get you inside, Sarah." There was affection and worry in his tone. "Then—if you like—I'll go for Dr. Davis. He's up here now, I suppose?"

"Of course. We've all been coming on the twentieth—for generations. Your father did. Our father did before him. George is here—but I don't need a doctor. I need a little rest—that's all. I've worried myself sick for fear you'd refuse to summer with me—at the last moment. This is just let-down."

Aggie reached over and took her firm, large hand. He squeezed it. "You're a honey, Sarah! Wozy-brained—but your heart's all right." Lights glimmered through the trees. The car turned into a foliated tunnel. Sarah's cottage

Today's Horoscope
Today's birthday child is courageous, aspiring in your efforts, and able to concentrate fully on what you are doing. You are impartial and sincere in your judgments. You are inclined to analyze the motives behind the actions of others. An early marriage would be suitable for one of your nature. A financial plan of yours may not be workable, but possibly it can lead to a valuable sequence. Today resist the temptation to indulge in pleasure, for the Neptune rays might create extremes of frivolity. Better retire early.

LEAVE A TRUMP OUT

DRAWING ALL of the defenders' trumps is a better habit to have than failing to draw them. That is, if you are going to act according to habit. But there are times when the entry situation, or losers to be discarded, or some other factor, should impel the declarer to refrain from taking out all of the hostile trumps. It is better to look over the situation and base the trump-drawing plan on the specific factors that appear at the time.

West led his spade A and, seeing East's 9, repeated with the Q, which K covered. East ruffed. The heart J was returned. South, realizing that a No Trump game would have been a cinch, was so peeved at himself for his rebidding of the four-card heart suit, getting him into a crazy contract.

Winning the heart J with the Q, he next overtook the diamond K with the A. Led dummy's last trump to finesse the heart 9, scored the heart K and A, finishing the defenders' trumps, ran his four clubs and then gave up two more spades at the end, being down one.

Simple planning could have pulled that bum contract through. Winning the third trick with the heart Q, he could have cashed the diamond K, scored the club A, ruffed a club in dummy, used the diamond A to discard a spade, ruffed a diamond with the heart 9, scored the heart A and K and the club K and Q, and then could have given up the last spade to West's J. . . .

WASHINGTON Report

Liquor-Soaked Capital
Sorry War-Time Scene

Labor Bureau Studies
Delinquency Problems

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—One day soon a person, with more than ordinary courage, is going to rise up in a Washington pulpit and say something like this:

"The drinking of alcoholic liquors in the capital of our country is so excessive as to be a national disgrace. The time for repentance is at hand. It had better be. Or the delirium tremens that threatens every other person here will take first a nationwide spread and soon engulf the whole world in its unworthy clutches."

Should a person deliver such a sermon, I would applaud. For the amount of drinking in Washington is increasing by the minute. What has become of that liquor shortage people mean about? I can't imagine. You never meet it face to face on the Potomac.

I do know that during the holidays social Washington in all its big and little phases virtually swam in spirits frumment and the rich and poor relations thereof. The last fortnight or so has been one reckless spree. Not a pretty spectacle, such a spree, with the casualty lists of war growing so long and so frequent as to be a fearful commonplace.

A TOWN WIT of the old-time variety was talking of Washington of today and said:

"There are as many social climbers about the place as cocktail parties. It's open season for the mushroom species. Great growing weather, you might say. Look at the party-going names in the papers and you'll see what I mean."

"Watch 1945. There'll be a turnover that'll make the social sprouting of other war-time Washingtons as flat as last October's leaf pile. We're in for a new crop of Important People. Call 'em the Ration Book Black Market Aristocracy if you want."

"Maybe you feel a bit snooty about some of them now. But I'll bet you that in another year you'll be trying to make them come to your own parties and feeling hurt if they decline."

THE CHILDREN'S BUREAU of the Department of Labor and other social agencies around here are in a state of proper agitation about juvenile delinquency. Even as baleful a situation as this has an amusing angle. I'm speaking of the introduction of the juveniles themselves into the earnest councils some elders have called to investigate the 'teen-age rebels.

"Tell us what you think is wrong with the youth of today?" the elders have been asking prayerfully as they sat at the feet of 14-year-old advisers.

"The thing that is the matter with us kids," the advisers have said, "is you grown-ups. You're pretty awful."

I quite agree with this adolescent summing up. We grown-ups are pretty awful. We need educating by the young. I've always been convinced that children were sent to educate their elders. I've seen very few elders who were not improved by the discipline of their young.

I'm expecting most any day now to have some precocious young-un ask a board of social workers:

"Why don't you older people begin educating us for that next war you talk about so much? Why don't you turn the rough qualities you complain about in us into some preparation for fighting?"

"What I mean is, you try to make us all good and kind to each other. At the same time you say you got to teach us how to keep enemies away. A bit of

"If I throw a stone through the window of the kid next door, my dad gives me a spanking. Don't you think it would be smarter if he'd call me in and say,

'Swell, Son! I'm glad you made such a fine hit. Now keep it up, break as many windows as you can. Destroy as much property as you can.'

"Some day you'll grow up to be a real soldier! Course you haven't got anything to work with now but sticks and stones. But if you keep practicing some day you'll get a nice bomb with Uncle Sam's name on it and you can drop that on people."

"What's the idea of you grown-up people wasting time telling us to stay on our side of the fence when if that next war you talk about comes off you'll have to teach us to get over every fence we can? And do all the dirty work we can get away with before someone does us dirt first. That's what you call national defense, isn't it?"

Terrifying talk this would be, but logical.

You're Telling Me!

CHILDREN 12 to 14 years old are now being employed as mail clerks in Germany. What's this, the Nazis' war-time version of the old party game of post-office?

More cigars promised by the OPA. With no political campaign in progress, there ought to be enough to go around.

Times must be tough, indeed, for a lazy fellow, thinks Grandpappy Jenkins, with the next holiday—Memorial Day—still more than four and a half months away.

Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts of Circleville and Pickaway county will soon have headquarters of their very own. It was announced Tuesday by Mrs. Bernard W. Young, Pickaway county Girl Scout commissioner. The new headquarters are to be above the Cussins and Fearn Co. store on North Court street.

It has long been the dream of the organization to find suitable quarters where the girls might have their meetings, parties, committee meetings and a place to store their handicraft and equipment. Through the efforts of Mrs. Tom Renick, Mrs. Ralph Curtin and Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., of the housing committee, the place was found. Centrally located, the place is sufficiently spacious to have a kitchen, so essential to the homemaking projects that are important in every Girl Scout program.

A special committee, headed by Mrs. Walter Heine, aided by Mrs. Ralph Curtin and Miss Ruth Stout, has studied the needs of the rooms and has allocated the work of cleaning to the several troops and their leaders, cleaning, dusting, mopping and otherwise preparing the rooms for the decorating work needed.

An urgent request has gone out to those who may have surplus articles that they might care to donate to the use of the girls, articles that could be used as they are or reconstructed into other

Bits on Books

By Enid Denham

To an air-minded generation and community, comes the new book of Wolfgang Langwiesche-Brandt, "Stick and Rudder: an Explanation of the Art of Flying," a book representing four years of intense research and actual flying on the part of its author. It tells exactly what the pilot does when he flies, just how he does it, and why. But it is an especially exciting and challenging book, for its ideas are based on revolutionary methods for training of pilots. Mr. Langwiesche contends that you have to give the student vivid images of his plane and its tricks of behavior in flight, all of which he points out, are not tricks at all, but following the usual physical laws, and flying will become natural. It is in the student's mind that he finds the preconceived ideas of how a plane should act, and once an understanding of the true facts replaces these ideas, then flying for the student will become a safe and easy accomplishment. So many important things are discussed in this book. The author has presented stimulating mental gymnastics for the experienced, as well as common sense training for the beginner. It is this training, this knowledge of what really goes on, as he flies, says the author, that distinguishes the experienced from the inexperienced pilot. Designed analysis for the student, for those who may be owning and flying planes after the war, this book is calculated to save several hundreds of hours of flight practice for the flyer who makes good use of its lessons.

"Crying at the Lock," by Adeline Rumsey is a modern psychological novel, with a dramatic plot and with great deal of suspense leading to a surprise ending. Mildred, a scheming young wife knows that her husband is bound by neuroses and circumstances to his dead first wife. Utterly selfish she probes for the answer to the mystery of Natalie. Perhaps Miss Rumsey had one eye on Hollywood, certainly she uses her wind, rain and storm to good advantage. A most readable book, tense, swift moving, and satisfying. Its title was drawn from the old nursery rhyme of Wee Willie Winkie—The busybody! and the effect it had on the young and grown-up Dartley. "Wilderness Champion," by Joseph Lippincott is a fascinating story of a great hound. A hound pup is lost on a mountain trail of Alberta, found and adopted by a black wolf. When half-grown and knowing in the ways of the wild, the dog is trapped and rescued by the ranger to whom he had formerly belonged. He lived with the ranger many years and learned his

LAURELVILLE

Miss Gwendolyn Dent entertained her bridge club Wednesday evening at her home.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Winfred Dumm, Celesta Hoy and Mrs. Hugh Poling. Other members and guests present were: Mrs. Eddie Beecher, Mrs. George Armstrong, Mrs. Marcellus Young, Miss Ruth Bowers, Margaret Chilcote. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

The Presbyterian Aid met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Winfred Dumm with Mrs. Irvin Kholer assisting. On account of the bad weather only seven members were present.

The United Brethren Aid and Missionary societies had an all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Denny Drum. At noon a covered dish lunch was served to 15 members.

In the afternoon they knotted a quilt for the dormitory at Stoutsville camp ground.

Mrs. Frank Cox entertained her bridge club Tuesday evening at her home. High was won by Mrs. Charles Grattidge and low by Mrs. Edgar Kelly. Other members and guests were Mrs. George Armstrong, Miss Frances McClelland, Mrs. May Archer, Mrs. George Swepston, Mrs. Charles Lappen, and Mrs. Clay Reichelderfer.

Miss Anna Bowers and Ruth Bowers visited Saturday with Robert Bowers at Lancaster hospital and Mr. and Mrs. George Fetherolf, of Lancaster.

Mrs. Hugh Poling spent the week end with Mrs. Helen Saylor, of Chillicothe.

Tom Wolf, fell Friday at the home of his son, Forest Wolf, and broke his hip. He was taken to Berger hospital.

Robert Bowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bowers, was taken Thursday to Lancaster for an appendicitis operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Billingsley and daughters left Thursday for their new home at Seattle, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay, of Columbus, were the Saturday over-ways, then left for the life of the wild again until the old wolf king died, then returned to his master. There is excellent telling in this tale, suspense of the chase, dramatic moments of great battles, unforgettable scenes of the wilderness ways. An excellent book for the adolescent or the man who loves the outdoor life and dogs.

These books may be obtained at the Circleville public library.

FLIERS TO FACE STRONG QUARTET ON HOME FLOOR

The Lockbourne Fliers will have to unfold some new trickery to defeat Blytheville Army Air Field, Ark., in the second quarter-final round game of the Eastern Flying Training Command's basketball tournament at the gym base Wednesday night.

The Blytheville team has chalked up an enviable record of ten wins and one loss against the toughest teams in the mid-south basketball competition this season.

One of these wins was a 57-33 shellacking of the Lockbourne team last week at Blytheville in the first quarter-final game of the EFTC meet to bring its record to 593 points scored in eleven games for an average of 54 points per game.

Key of the Blytheville offense is Sgt. Jake Myers, six feet five inch center, who formerly played basketball at Loyola University of New Orleans. He has racked up 169 points for the season for a 15.4 average. Against Lockbourne last week he came through with 18 markers.

Another spearhead on offense is Lt. Harold McGuffey, former Western Kentucky State star, who has tallied 218 points in 13 games played as a member of both the officers' and enlisted men's teams, for an average of 16 points per game. He scored 16 points against the Fliers.

The Fliers need a victory to stay in the running, otherwise they will be eliminated from further competition in the EFTC tournament. Should a third game be necessary it will take place at the base gym Thursday night.

NCAA WILL NOT BAN OPPONENTS OF HAMLINE

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Any member school of the National Collegiate Athletic Association will not be ostracized or banned from N. C. A. A. competition in any way if its basketball team plays Hamline university, K. L. (Tug) Wilson, newly elected N. C. A. A. secretary-treasurer, said today.

In clarifying his association's stand on Hamline's use of professional athletes, Wilson said, "we attempt to set no general pattern for the whole country. Hamline, since it is not a member, cannot play in our tournaments, but any school that plays Hamline does not impair its standing with us in any way."

The national A. A. U. has ostracized Hamline because two of its athletes, Howie Schutz and Rolfe Seltz, are professionals, and announced that any team which plays Hamline also is "professionalized."

Wilson's remarks were made in connection with Hamline's game this Saturday with DePaul, which is an N. C. A. A. member.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, January 16 JUDGING by the conflicting position of dominating planets on this day, it may be difficult to push ahead toward desired objectives or cherished ideals or ambitions, although there may be those ready to stand by and give the needed word of encouragement or perhaps more substantial cooperation.

Sounder footing, increased financial resources, or enhanced personal prestige and popularity are indicated although there are frustrating or postponing circumstances to manipulate. Alert, shrewd, and practical tactics may solve such a situation and circumvent some undercover or treacherous strategies. Keep the forward look and await developments.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by some contradictory or baffling circumstances during the year, in which their sound judgment, clever management, and tenacious and optimistic outlook may prove real assets. Such are likely to attract assistance or wise counsel from those in high places, whose friendship may be cultivated with lasting results. But be alert

BASEBALL VETS END BUSY TOUR

Sewell, Waner And Walker Say Service Men Want Game To Continue

MIAMI, FLA., Jan. 16.—Three returning veterans of major league baseball, who talked with service men in a 35,000 mile tour of the China-Burma-India theater, agreed today that interest in the sport is keener there than back home in America.

The trio, Manager Luke Sewell of the American League champion St. Louis Browns, Fred (Dixie) Walker of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Paul Waner of the New York Yankees, talked themselves hoarse they said, in attempting to answer hundreds of questions on baseball for the G. I.'s.

The baseball men, who arrived yesterday by plane along with Arthur Patterson, New York Herald Tribune sports writer, comprised one of five units sent out by the major leagues in connection with the United Service Organizations for entertaining servicemen overseas.

"Wherever we went we found the fellows keenly interested in baseball," Sewell said. "They asked a thousand or more questions and we did our level best to answer them. Sometimes we were stumped."

Waner, who has made more than 8,000 hits during his baseball career, said he encountered a number of men who had heard about him joining the Yankees after his unconditional release by the Brooklyn Dodgers last season, and others who thought he still was with the Pittsburgh Pirates. In some areas, he said, baseball news travels fast, while in others there was still some doubt as to which of the St. Louis clubs had won the World Series.

Walker, who amazed baseball by winning the National League batting championship with the highest average of his long career last season, said that his Brooklyn Dodgers came in for most of the attention in the quizzing bees.

Patterson said that the question of whether 4-F's should be permitted to continue to play baseball came up only once, shortly after the announcement by War Mobilization Director, James F. Byrnes, that he had asked selective service to review the deferments of 4-F athletes.

"The C-B-I Roundup, G. I. newspaper out there, commented on the matter and suggested that even though baseball might have to be curtailed, it should not be discontinued," he said.

Typical of G. I. comment, Patterson said, was that of Lt. Jack Cuddy, Abingdon, Va., ferry pilot. "We should keep baseball by all means," Cuddy said. "In the ferry command we fly too often so fast and to so many places that we can't keep up with the standings, but wherever we go where scores are available, they always make up the conversation."

Pvt. Edwin Ohlman of Valentine, Neb., said according to Patterson: "Stop baseball? Who's gonna do that? How many men do they need for two big leagues anyhow?"

to treachery or other form of subtlety or peculiar alliances or intrigues.

A child born on this day will have much talent, vision and ingenuity with sound ambitions, practical as well as inspirational. But it may suffer through duplicity or strange attachments.

HARTVILLE STAR SETS SCORING PACE FOR STATE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16.—Basketball observers seeking All-Ohio Scholastic candidates had a wealth of material to select from today as cage programs swung into their third week of 1945 play.

One of the best marks turned in this year was set by Gene Kinsley of Hartville, who scored 16 field goals and seven free throws for 39 points during three quarters of Hartville's 53-30 victory over Middlebranch.

Kenny Pyles of Ravenna township scored 37 points as his team defeated Deerfield, 71-25, while Joe Huth of Streetsboro, made 32 against Nelson. Lou Toldza, Powhatan forward, dropped in 14 field goals and three free throws for 31 points as the Indians defeated Clarington, 68-38, for their sixth straight victory.

Meanwhile, Middletown, the state Class A defending champion, continued undefeated by beating Lima Central, 36-26, and Dayton Chaminade, 31-22, for a record of ten straight.

Akron Ellet, the state Class B defending champion which was upset at Norton, 35-26, a week ago, limited Coventry to five field goals in Ellet's 35-12 victory Friday.

4-CAGE GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

Circleville Plays At Grove City; Ashville Is Host To Linden McKinley

Unless road conditions are too bad, two interesting basketball games will be played in Pickaway county Tuesday night while Circleville and New Holland will travel.

Circleville will take time out from South Central Ohio league play to visit Grove City and New Holland will go to Frankfort.

Linden McKinley, one of the strong teams in Columbus, will be the opposition at Ashville. The host team will be after its 11th straight victory of the season and is a slight favorite over the team which defeated Circleville by one-point in a wild finish in Columbus.

Pickaway and Williamsport are scheduled but bad roads may force postponement of the contest. Both schools have several postponed games now and probably will play if at all possible.

Some new faces probably will be seen in the Circleville lineup Tuesday night. Junior Anderson, regular guard, reported for Navy duty Saturday and Coach Roy Black will be faced with the problem of replacing him. The game also will mark the last appearance of Leon Sims with the team. He reports for military service next week.

Coach Black said Tuesday he would start five of the six boys who have been regulars against Grove City. Starting will be Leon Sims, Freck Heath, Jim Dade, Jack Hennis and Bob Lovensheim. For replacements Coach Black will choose from Earl Palm, Dick Shaw, Leonard Hill, Porter Winner and Junior Clark.

CHS reserves will play the preliminary against the Grove City reserves.

GAME FOILS NAZIS
"Keep Up With the World" will reveal Wednesday the remarkable story of how a childish outdoor game was the clever means of following the Gestapo on the German-Swiss border, and thereby saving the lives of three Underground patriots. The dramatic half-hour program of unusual but true stories is heard regularly on Wednesday.

HONOR SERVICEMEN
Milton Berle will honor service men heroes of World War II on his "Let Yourself Go" program Wednesday. First guest to reveal his secret desire on Berle's show will be ex-Coast Guardsman Fred T. Griffin, twice wounded North Berge, N. J. hero. In return for his visit, Berle's sponsor will gratify his wish and those of succeeding guests, now honorably discharged from further service in the armed forces.
PROBE WHITE JAPAN
A diabolical Japanese plot to create radical disunion throughout the world is investigated by "David Harding—Counterspy" in "The Case of the Ainu" on Wednesday. The Ainu people, a tribe of blue-eyed and fair-skinned Japs, are sent into the occidental world to mingle with white men. Their deceptive coloring masks their true purpose, which is to set off an inter-racial explosion when Tokyo gives the word, the story relates.

Pickaway County's Farm Institute Season To Open Monday

SCIOTO SCHOOL TO BE SCENE OF FIRST ASSEMBLY

Program Of Speaking, Music And Contests Scheduled By Officers

Pickaway county's institute season will begin next Monday when the Scioto Township Farmers' Institute opens in Scioto township school auditorium.

Officers of the institute, set for Monday and Tuesday, are president, Ben Grace; vice president, Raymond Holt; secretary, Pearl Zimmer; treasurer, Howard Neff; hostess, Mrs. Ben Grace.

Speakers for the two-day institute are Wheeler J. Welday, Smithfield, Ohio; Mrs. Byron Grimes, Delaware; F. K. Blair, Pickaway county agriculture extension agent; Miss Helen Cryder, county home demonstration agent, and George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools.

Music will be provided by the Scioto school band and other pupils of the school under the direction of Mrs. Carl Trego, music instructor. Prizes will be given for house frocks shown in a style show. In the food show prizes will be given for eggs, corn and potatoes. A poster contest will be held for students. Exhibits will feature home crafts and school work.

Dinner will be served both days by women of the community.

The second institute scheduled is the Perry township institute at New Holland, January 24 and 25. Others are: Saltcreek, January 26, 27; Monroe, February 5, 6; Walnut, February 7, 8, climaxed by the 50th anniversary institute at Tilton February 9, 10.

Icy roads which have stopped most travel in the county have slowed up plans for the institutes but officers are going ahead with arrangements, hoping for a "break" in the weather.

ceptance. That too is inevitable.

Therefore, it is the duty of those who believe in soundness to stand steadfast in this wandering, drifting condition. It is their duty to nurture the light in darkness for the future time when it will again lighten the fires in every home and bring warming comfort to future people.

Of the realization of simple substances must sound knowledge and sound value eventually come. Money will be worth only what circumstance or some future authority declares it to be worth. Our international safety will be only such as our ingenuity and constant alertness can prescribe.

There is no safety in numbers, even in modern weapons, because these become obsolete overnight. Planes in which we trusted at the outset of this war can hardly be used as trainers today. Time is fast. So is obsolescence. Only alertness can endure.

Wages, hours, prices, all the other economic factors have suffered the same swift deterioration of their values as the planes in the past three years. A wage is no better than the goods it will buy.

By such considerations should values be truly measured, not in the high talk you hear so frequently today in the search for artifices, magic formulas, economic contrivances and devices to bring us all ease, luxury, heaven on earth, but which are only cheating our reason of the lesson of arithmetic.

These are the factors of the world today. These problems must be met and solved. They are critical. They need not be fatal. They demand the earnest energy and utmost effort of those who know the truth among the people.

We must restore morality in

Births In County More Than Double Number Of Deaths During Last Year

Population of Circleville and surrounding territory increased during 1944 according to reports made to Mrs. Harriett Wallace, local registrar of vital statistics.

Reports made to the office at 114 West Franklin street show that there were 323 births during the last year and 128 deaths.

The territory covered by the local office includes Circleville and five townships: Circleville, Pickaway, Wayne, Washington and Jackson.

During December, 25 births were reported. Boys outnumbered girls, 14 to 11, the records show.

WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Suit for divorce was filed in common pleas court Monday by Nellie Rhoads against Leslie B. Rhoads. The petition states they were married September 13, 1919, and have seven children. The plaintiff charges extreme cruelty and states the defendant is now in jail on an assault and battery charge. She asks custody of the children, temporary and permanent alimony.

SALE OF 1945 DOG TAG GETS OFF TO SLOW START

Sale of 1945 dog licenses has been very slow, Pickaway County Auditor Forrest Short said Tuesday as he reminded dog owners that Saturday is the deadline for purchasing tags without paying a penalty.

Icy roads have prevented some rural residents from securing tags and the office is willing to accept applications by mail. A blank which may be used by those unable to come to the office appeared in the Herald last Friday and will appear again before the deadline date.

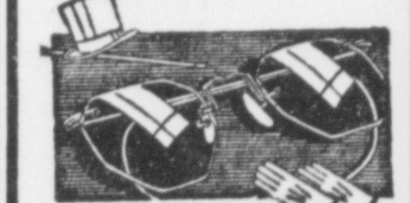

Prices are the same as they have been in past years.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Thine own wickedness shall corrupt thee, and thy backslidings shall reprove thee.—Jeremiah 2:19.

Election of officers is scheduled at the meeting of the Pickaway Farmers' and Sportsmen's association Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Elks club. The club also will discuss the placing of rabbits in Pickaway county. All hunters, particularly those interested in hunting rabbits, are invited to attend the meeting.

Notice to Electric Consumers—Due to manpower situation and in order to cooperate with the Post Office the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company asks its patrons when sending mail to the company to kindly use P. O. Box 350 on the envelopes. Chas. T. Gilmore, manager.

The Elks club will sponsor a games party at the home on N. Court street, Wednesday night beginning at 8:30. Everyone invited.

Mrs. and Mrs. Willard Gaines, 132 Mingo street, are parents of a son born Sunday at their home.

Mrs. Robert Leist, Washington township, a patient in Berger hospital, admitted Monday, submitted to major surgery Tuesday.

Mrs. John Walters, who had been a patient in Berger hospital for a week for treatment of fractures of the right leg, suffered in a fall on the ice, was released Monday and removed to her home on East Water street.

William Lagore, 1014 South Court street, received emergency treatment January 13 in Berger hospital for a hand injury suffered while at work at the Circleville plant of the Container Corporation of America.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dollison and baby girl were released Monday from Berger hospital and removed to their home, 710 Clinton street.

INVENTORY FILED

Inventory filed in probate court in the estate of Mary Ludema Decker lists the value at $4,356.43, $3,600 of which is real estate. Grover C. White, W. E. Arnold and Joseph Peters were appraisers.
